LOUISVILLE JOURNAL
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY PETERSON, HENDERSON, & OSBORN
GROCER, DEALER, TAILOR AND FOUNDRY.
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1865.

We publish in another column a letter from General Buell in regard to the campaign against Fort Henry and Donelson. Bowling Green, etc., in the spring of 1862, in connection with certain statements made by General Sherman in his speech at St. Louis.

We do this in sheer justice to a brave, patriotic, and meritorious general who received less at the hands of his country than he deserves.

While doing this, we intend to cast no reflection upon General Sherman. That great chief would not intentionally do injustice to any man; but he is human, and some things, in the multitude of reminiscences that crowd upon him respecting the war, may naturally enough have escaped his memory.

This seems to be the proper solution of the question of difference as to matters of fact between him and General Buell, which the latter refers to in his letter.

Two REQUESTS TO THE GROWTH OF LOUISVILLE.—There are two measures preliminary to the rapid and permanent growth of Louisville whose importance can hardly be too strongly urged upon the consideration of its citizens. We refer to the pavement of its streets and the erection of cheap-rate houses.

We have been in touch with the principal cities of the South, and if there is one so wretchedly paved as Louisville, we have never seen it. The things called pavements have scarcely deserved the name. They are abominations whose existence would not be tolerated in other communities either upon principles of aesthetics or interest. We have become through the force of habit so accustomed to them that their true character and its natural consequences have almost ceased to make an impression upon us. We pass without a thought substances that strike a new-comer with astonishment, and therefore we fail to notice the legitimate effects upon the property and business of the community.

The policy of permitting the pavements of Louisville to remain as they are will be found a most short-sighted and expensive one—penny wise and pound foolish.

The work of patching and repatching, of filling up soughs and plastering them over, is at once endless and costly, a perpetual repetition to no purpose.

The pavements are execrable pieces of waste, and when soughs are filled, and then, in addition to this fact, when a street has once been paved with square blocks of earth, the price of a square-block pavement would be solid and clean and beautiful, and that would last a generation, and yet there is nothing to show for the money that is spent but the old stones, broken stones, and moving dirt—nothing but everlasting wear and tear to those who walk upon them.

The opening day will be Wednesday, September 20th.

MRS. A. NELSON,
Fourth Street.

between GREEN and WALNUT.

We learn from the New York Times that General Meade has made a satisfactory report to the Government of the reviving sense of political and social duty throughout the southern states of his department. The report in question is to be made basis for a reduction of the national army at several points in Virginia and North and South Carolina. For the time it is to be confined to the white, not less than the black population, and that there should be military jurisdiction over the freedmen cases between the emancipated slaves and their late masters. But the authority of these special courts, if General Meade correctly estimates the sentiment of the resident population, will not require the support of any large force. And there seems to be on all hands an accumulation of evidence showing the existence of a disposition on the part of employers and employed to make the best of their new relations. Therefore, we believe, lies the main reason and best argument for the Executive method of reconstruction. That is, the late insurgents do duty to be met, by extending confidence to them. How much is implied in the word confidence the honest citizens of the South now begin to discover, as they set about finding their way back into the Union.

The Richmond Republic announces that President Johnson, a few days ago, informed Mr. Charles Palmer, of that city, that he would soon pay a visit to the Old Dominion. The Republic expresses great gratification in making this announcement, and promises that Richmond will give to the President a brilliant and hearty welcome.

Mr. Stevens is doing all the mischief he can. If the ancient Stephen hadn't been better than the modern Stevens, the Jews wouldn't have been so very wrong in stoning him to death.

Long John Wentworth, of Chicago, has bought General Grant's horse "Jack." That Long fellow will hardly fit as fine a figure as "Jack" as t'other long fellow does on Pegasus.

The physiologists say that a good many people are born with the blemish of constitutive weakness. We hope that some of our public men have that of reconstructiveness.

Gen. Longstreet has turned away from the Southern Confederacy and gone to Baltimore. Long-streets have "turn" as well as "short-laces."

We fear that, although the South has made up its mind to swallow what it wants, it is likely to be a great demand there for digestive pills.

If our people are scared at the thought of not having enough revenue, they must submit to be a good deal taxed.

The Sunday law is rigidly enforced in Boston. Everything is closed on the "fourth"莫里斯。Wits twas so here.—Washington Index.

Congress ought to have a physician as well as a surgeon. The members are always getting "out of order."

YOUNG INTERESTS WILL BE ADVANCED BY THESE COMPANIES OVER ADOPTED, and desires of locating permanently in one of the Western cities. This, cleanliness, neatness, and elegance, the conveniences of living which it holds out,
all have a powerful influence upon its fortune.

They attract population and increase all kinds of business and the value of property, and, therefore, the revenues derived from it. Hence the moderate salary under which services shall have been procured, and compensation directed to "garrison," which is less than $1,000. Paid, often, with precept attention.

Our business men and all our property-holders are vitally interested in this question of paving our streets in a proper manner, and they should move in body in its favor, and move at once.

They ought not to be a day lost. The thing will have to be done, sooner or later, and the quicker it is accomplished the better it will be for all our interests. The arguments in its favor will every day acquire greater weight and cogency. All the money spent in patches will be thrown away.

We must attack the system in progress and completely spread and overthrow it.

In Havasu the Belgian pavement is adopted, and the Mayor of New York has recommended the same system for that city. This consists of small square blocks instead of large ones. In New Orleans the large blocks have been adopted, and we think that they are better adapted to the soil here than the Belgian pavement.

Broadway, New York, and other travel have good stock on roads and carful and driven, and we hope to receive a share of all the profits.

Mrs. Kate Nally, whose unfortunate death by accidental shooting has been chronicled in the city papers, was buried at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. Her remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of friends. This occurrence was peculiarly melancholy, and it has produced universal sorrow. The deceased was only 18 years of age, and her brother, the man who shot her, was but 16. The one cut off from a life just glided with fair promises, rudely torn away from loving family and friends, and forever debarred the fruition of a young life's hopes—the other, in the very meridian of youth, left to bear the lacerating pangs of remorse, and yield up his faltering days to comfortless dejection. We shall deeply condole with the relatives and friends of Miss Nally, and we sincerely trust that the healing facts in relation to this sad affair, which may not be unimportant to publish.

The accident occurred between twelve and one o'clock on Friday, the 13th instant, corner of Elm and Wenzel streets. No one was present at the time of the shooting but the deceased and her brother William, who, state that his sister went up stairs to get his knife, which he had loaned her, and that after the knife had been given to him he entered his bed-room, and took up the gun as pointed it at his sister; that he did not know it was loaded, nor did he see a cap on it; that his sister told him to put the gun down, which so scared him that in trying to let the hammer down his thumb slipped off of it, and the gun was discharged.

Mrs. Rebecca Prentiss testified as follows: "I did not see the shooting. I heard the shot, and went up to Mr. Nally's to see what was the matter; when I got there I saw what had occurred."

Later he met the doctor, and the doctor learned from his brother that the gun had been fired between the parlor and bed-room, she was lying on her side, and was not able to speak when I first got there; about ten or fifteen minutes after I arrived she came to and was able to talk; she said that William got the gun and pointed it toward her, when she told him the gun was loaded and to put it down; he had just uttered these words when the gun went off. He had say two or three times, 'Oh, Billy, Billy, what did you do?' I did not hear anything else, nothing but a distinct noise between her self and William. She said she had got up stairs after his knife. Mrs. M. F. Fife and James T. Lee corroborated the testimony of Mrs. Prentiss, the former adding that she heard Miss Nally say that there had been no cause of difficulty between herself and brother."

There were forty-seven shot holes in the body of Miss Nally. The gun was loaded with equi-shot, which scattered over her face, throat and breast. The Coroner's jury rendered a verdict of "accidental shooting," as heretofore published.

THE NEW COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.—The lecture on Penmanship last night by Prof. John J. Dalton, of the New Standard Commercial College, was well attended, and the large audience listened with attention to the lucid and plain statements of the speaker. This event is worthy of note as being the inauguration of another link in the great chain of Commercial Colleges that begins on the Atlantic coast and stretches to the far side of the Valley of the Mississippi. The great influence such a chain of educational centers will have upon the business of the young men of the present day cannot be overestimated, and that tends to the promotion and extension of our country's business, is of benefit to the nation as well as to individuals.

WOOD'S THEATER.—A crowded house welcomed Miss Lotta in her first appearance last night, and the audience, and her original style of acting delighted them greatly, and at the end of the first place she was called before the curtain. Her humor is broad and infectious, and whether the closely critical call it absurd or not, they are compelled to join in the merriment she creates. The program for to-night is Mr. and Mrs. Peter White, Our Gal, and Nan the Good-for-Nothing. Those who desire seats will do well to make full use of "accidental shooting," as heretofore published.

DR. D. W. YANDELL was, several years ago

employed as a professor in the Louisville Medical Institute and a most successful surgeon and physician here. Since then he had four years' experience in the Southern army—

Gen. Johnston said that he was the first in his profession in the Southern Confederacy—an opinion in which we understand that all concurred.

GENERAL BURDEN AND THE LAW.—Louis was refused to a man named Morris by the merciful authorities of Lexington on the ground that the law of Kentucky requires in his case a residence of two years. Morris applied to Gen. Brigham, and on military authority proceeded to sell his horses, when he was arrested. After investigation Morris was released, but the General decided that he must put his pictures at the sale stores and not peddle them through the streets in violation of the statute law of the State.

DR. K. E. GRISWOLD, known by his myriad of "old Bob" stories, is in the city yesterday. We were glad to find him healthy.

After receiving a few words of friendly advice from General Watkins, they were released. These arrests were not made because of running for clothing stores, but for the adoption of means to obtain personal gain.

THE PROVOST GUARD.—Between twelve and one o'clock last night the steam-engine foundry of Hawley & Billings on the corner of Eighth street and the Grove, caught fire and was totally destroyed. The adjoining house, belonging to Mr. William Prentiss, and occupied by Mr. Billings, of the above firm, was also partly burned, and was entirely destroyed by water, the remains of which were scattered around buildings were more or less injured by the water from the engine. But through the faithful exertions of the Fire Department the flames were confined to the foundry and dwelling.

The origin of the fire is a question of doubt, some attributing it to accident others believing it to have been the work of incendiaries. We could not last night obtain any particulars as to the loss sustained, but we do not think the aggregate loss will fall short of $20,000.

RUNNERS.—The Provost Guard yesterday made a raid among these gentlemen, some twelve of whom were arrested for having violated General Orders No. 19 by running for clothing stores in the city of Louisville. All were released, and the same sentence was imposed on each of them that many had expected. The owners of the mines on the Monongahela have effected a compromise with their cool-diggers, who have been on a strike for higher pay, and there is nothing to prevent a full supply of this commodity reaching this and all other river markets. There is real want in this intelligence.

THE CHILDREN POISONED.—Sister, a slave of Mr. E. E. Anderson, yesterday made a bold attempt to poison her master's family by dropping their food. She succeeded so far as to poison four of the children, one of whom is not expected to survive. By the assistance of physicians the other three were restored to consciousness, and will recover. Officers Sudder and Walker arrested the negro, and committed her to prison. We hope all negroes will take the hint.

THE PROVOST GUARD.—The very sudden change in the weather, since Sunday suggests a plenty of fuel, and we are glad to be informed that the prospects for an early frost are favorable, and that some snow may be expected. The owners of the mines on the Monongahela have effected a compromise with their cool-diggers, who have been on a strike for higher pay, and there is nothing to prevent a full supply of this commodity reaching this and all other river markets. There is real want in this intelligence.

THE PROVOST GUARD.—In this city a few days ago on the charge of having stolen a watch and one hundred dollars, a treasury note at Steelyville, Ky., will be taken to the civil place-to-morrow and delivered to the civil authorities. He is in the hands of Mr. Frank Holmes, one of our guardians of justice.

THE WESTERN FAVOREES.—Washington, Kelly, and Lewis Minstrels open at Masonic Temple on to-morrow night. All the old favorites are there and those who know them will be sure to go, and those who do not will do well to cultivate a knowledge of one of the best minstrel troops that ever traveled.

WE HAVE AUTHORITY for stating that Col. C. will act as Judge Advocate in the case of the Hon. Emerson Etheridge, which will be tried at Columbus, Ky. Col. C. is ordered to proceed to that point, as soon as the Magruder trial here is over, to prepare for the case.

ARRESTION.—Fanny Moore, a woman of ill-fame, was yesterday arrested on a peace warrant, for attempting to run off with a sixteen-year-old boy, the son of Mr. William Stillman. The inquisitives have gall for her appearance at the Police Court this morning.

OUR INVESTIGATION for the ext of the most-troubling case was yesterday responded to by the old Worcester. Guillotines are frozen out. Their execrable hum is "aint and low." They have gone glistening and humming to Dixie, we suppose.
